--Boxes beginning with the prefix KC are at our offsite facility. Please allow extra time for retrieval.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE:

Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. was born to Thomas P. and Rose Ann (Tolan) O'Neill on December 9, 1912, in North Cambridge, Massachusetts, a section of town once called "Old Dublin" because of the high concentration of Irish families; he was the third of three children. His mother died when he was nine months old and for his first seven years he was raised by a French-Canadian housekeeper, Rose La Blanc. When O'Neill was eight his father married a woman named Mary Cain. By this time O'Neill was being called "Tip," a nickname that came from a popular baseball player of the previous generation, Edward O'Neill, a master at drawing walks and fouling off pitches, thus, "Tip" O'Neill. Many O'Neill male children were given this nickname.

Originally a bricklayer, O'Neill's father became active in Cambridge politics first as a member of the Cambridge City Council and then as Superintendent of Sewers. He was known in the neighborhood as the Governor and was a generous man. Throughout his life O'Neill recalled that his father taught him five important lessons: 1) Loyalty; 2) Live a clean and honest life; 3) Remember responsibilities to fellow men; 4) Remember always from whence you came; and 5) Politics as a profession depended on your honesty and integrity. Neighbors often remarked that the younger Thomas was like his father and he tried to live up to him and these ideals.

O'Neill attended his parish grammar school, St. John's, and the high school, St. John's High. He graduated from St. John's in 1931 where he was captain of the basketball team. Even in high school he was active in local politics. He worked for various candidates and helped get out the vote by making sure everyone had a ride to the polls.

In 1935 O'Neill entered political life with his first campaign, trying for a seat on the Cambridge City Council as a senior at Boston College. This was his first and only loss. This was the campaign in which O'Neill learned that "People like to be asked" and "All politics is local." In November of the next year, 1936, after graduating from Boston College, he was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, the first of 25 consecutive elections spanning 50 years of public service. The Great Depression had hurt his constituents and O'Neill became a strong advocate of New Deal liberalism.

On June 17, 1941, he married Mildred Ann Miller, "Millie," his high school sweet heart. In 1947 he was elected Minority Leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and in 1949 he became Speaker of the House and the first Democrat since the Civil War to hold that position. O'Neill had thought about running for governor of Massachusetts after two or three terms in the Massachusetts House. Instead, when John F. Kennedy gave up his seat in the U.S. House of Representatives to run for the Senate in 1952, O'Neill ran and was elected in his place.

Cultivating his constituency, O'Neill secured his political base and was reelected every two years for the next 34 years. He was appointed Majority Whip of the U.S. House of Representatives in 1971 and in 1973 was elected Majority Leader. In 1977 he was elected Speaker of the U.S. House by acclamation. Throughout his years he supported civil rights bills, antipoverty programs, Medicare, and federally funded health care. As one of the few remaining New Deal Democrats, he became a national leader who never lost touch with his constituency. He counseled his colleagues to pay close attention to constituent service because "All politics is local," and he transformed the speakership from a focal point of inside maneuvering to a position of national political leadership.

O'Neill was unstintingly loyal to the Democratic Party, reminding people that his party was the party of the working people, the poor and the needy. O'Neill's relationships with presidents and foreign leaders include a long list of some of the twentieth century's greatest men. In 1967 O'Neill announced his stand against U.S. involvement in Vietnam, one of the earliest to do so. He called the war "the most frustrating conflict in American history." In 1974 he played a pivotal role in managing the Nixon impeachment proceedings. His relations with President Jimmy Carter were strained and as his party's highest ranking official he found the anti-liberal attacks of the Reagan administration difficult to tolerate. Still, O'Neill remained steadfast in his philosophy and emerged as a popular figure when he retired in 1986, ending 50 years of public service and a record tenure of ten consecutive years as Speaker.

After retirement O'Neill published two books. Man of the House, which appeared in 1987, soon became a best-seller. O'Neill's second book, All Politics is Local, was published in 1993. O'Neill also received many honorary degrees, awards, and tributes. Of special importance were the Laetare Medal, received from the University of Notre Dame in 1980, and the Ignatius Medal, received from Boston College in 1981. In 1991 O'Neill was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President George Bush. The citation reads in part: "Tip O'Neill had an uncanny ability to understand people and politics ... his demonstrated faithful service to the people also well serves the nation."

On January 5, 1994, O'Neill died of cardiac arrest at Brigham & Women's Hospital in Boston. The Funeral Mass was celebrated at St. John the Evangelist Church, Cambridge, his home parish. Burial took place at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Harwich, Cape Cod, Massachusetts.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE:

The Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. Congressional Papers document the Speaker's career in the U.S. House of Representatives. Although the material in the collection dates from 1935 through 1994, the bulk of it covers O'Neill's years in Washington, D.C., 1953-1986. Much of the material was generated by the Speaker's staff though O'Neill's personality is apparent throughout the collection. Politics at the highest level of government never overshadowed constituents' concerns. O'Neill's identification with the common man and his generous sense of humor are preserved in the papers.

The papers are organized in seven series with multiple subseries and sub-subseries.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS:

Series I. Personal/Office Files

Subseries A. Biographical Information, 1986-1987, 1994

Throughout his fifty years of public service O'Neill was not only a "Man of the House", he was also a man of the people. Major events, anecdotes, and reminiscences are found in the various newspaper and magazine tributes written at the time of his death. These reflect the respect and admiration others held for him. Here, too, may be found the drafts and proofs of O'Neill's book, Man of the House, in which he reflects on his years of public service.

Subseries B. Campaigns, 1952-1984

Representatives in the House must run for election every two years. This material documents O'Neill's campaigns for Congress, from the first, which was conducted in 1952, to the last one in 1984. Correspondence with individuals and organizations from colleagues and constituents are included along with redistricting information. There are also numerous campaign items in the Artifacts series.

Subseries C. Honorary Degrees & Awards, 1973-1987

Honorary degrees were bestowed on O'Neill from such universities as Harvard, New England School of Law, and Trinity College in Dublin. Citations, programs, diplomas and correspondence document these degrees, which frequently were either Doctor of Laws or Doctor of Public Administration. Awards include several he received from Boston College, such as the Ignatius Medal. Prestigious honors from other institutions include the Harry S. Truman Good Neighbor Award and the Distinguished Service Award from the U.S. Association of Former Members of Congress. Many degrees and awards can also be found in the Artifacts series.

Subseries D. Memorabilia, 1953-1994

These miscellaneous documents reflect both O'Neill's official and unofficial activities. Programs from charity golf tournaments, passports, retirement letters, and cards document some of the range of his interests. Tickets, invitations and supporting material present a unique view of presidential inaugurations from Eisenhower to Clinton. Published works previously found in this series have been transferred to the Burns Library book collection.

Subseries E. Correspondence, 1953-1986

These letters provide an insight into O'Neill's dealings with individuals, both colleagues and constituents. This subseries is arranged in sub-subseries, but there is overlap in the content.

Sub-Subseries 1. VIP Correspondence

These are notes and letters of thanks and congratulations, often generated by protocol. However, it is possible to distinguish a personal touch within them. Some of the identified correspondents include Presidents Kennedy, Johnson, Ford, and Carter, Senators Edward Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey, and Speakers McCormack and Albert, along with foreign dignitaries and heads of state. Celebrity correspondents range from baseball great Carl Yastrzemski to entertainers such as Bob Hope and Dinah Shore.

Sub-Subseries 2. Legislative Correspondence

Included here are letters received by O'Neill and his responses. These are more focused on issues and legislation, with accompanying background material occasionally attached. "Dear Colleague" correspondence, through which legislative support was sought by and solicited from O'Neill, is filed here. Such solicitations come not only from congressional colleagues but also from corporate executives and constituent organizations.

Sub-Subseries 3. Foreign Correspondence

These letters deal with the Speaker's travels overseas and with visiting delegations. Additional communication with heads of states may be found in the VIP Correspondence (Series I. Subseries E. Sub-Subseries 1.). More information on visiting dignitaries and O'Neill's trips abroad are located in Kirk O'Donnell's files (Series II. Subseries A.).

Sub-Subseries 4. Acknowledgments and Thanks

Once referred to as "Happiness" correspondence, these notes reflect O'Neill's more personal, non-issue oriented relationship with his constituents, friends, and colleagues. Length and topics vary considerably, from brief congratulatory notes on job appointments, wedding anniversaries, and birthdays to comments on how government works in answer to inquiries from children. Although some of the briefer replies follow a formulaic pattern, it was not unusual for O'Neill to dictate letters to his personal secretary, Eleanor Kelley. Similar correspondence may be found in Eleanor Kelley's files (Series II. Subseries B.).

Sub-Subseries 5. Constituent Correspondence

These letters are focused primarily on constituents' attitudes and opinions. Issues which concerned people are most often related to topics of legislation or bills; however, general complaints and comments were also received.

Subseries F. Invitations & Appointments, 1970-1972

Invitations to parties, receptions, and fundraising events are intermingled with notices of upcoming meetings. Of special interest are the schedules for 1971, O'Neill's first year as Majority Whip. Unfortunately, schedules for other years were not found in the collection.

Subseries G. Intern Projects, 1969-1986

Primarily summer projects for interested college students, the Intern Program resulted in numerous research papers. O'Neill's staff supervised the interns and assigned them topics of current debate, such as the Draft, Alaskan Pipeline, and Tax Reform. Often these topics either centered on current legislation or would spark proposals for bills.

Series II. Staff Files

Subseries A. Kirk O'Donnell Files, 1966-1986

Kirk O'Donnell served as General Counsel on the Speaker's staff. In addition to legal issues, O'Donnell managed foreign policy matters. His files include material of Northern Ireland and Central America. O'Donnell's files also contain information on the Democratic National Committee (DNC) and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (DCCC). Although some background material is included, these files predominantly date from O'Neill's years as Speaker of the House (1977-1986).

Subseries B. Eleanor Kelley Files, 1954-1986

Eleanor Kelley served as O'Neill's personal Secretary during his tenures as Majority Leader and Speaker (1973-1986). Correspondence, congratulatory, and thank you notes to and from both colleagues and constituents can be found here, in addition to those in the Personal / Office Files (Series I. Subseries E. Sub-Subseries 4.). Files of special interest include material on St. Patrick's Day celebrations (1954-1983) and notes from White house Leadership Meetings held during Carter's presidency (1977-1980).

Series III. Legislative Files

Subseries A. Legislative/Committee Files, 1970-1985

During his leadership years O'Neill, always responsive to constituent concerns, received considerable correspondence on legislative proposals before Congressional committees. These letters came from state and local officials, businesses, institutions, and lobbyists in response to domestic and foreign issues that affected O'Neill's district, Massachusetts, and New England. The correspondence together with background material, brochures, reports, and news clippings reveal the dominant issues of that period. These files are arranged alphabetically by committee name.

Subseries B. Department/Agency Files, 1970-1984

Similar in scope to the Legislative/Committee Files (Series III. Subseries A.), these records reflect the issues and programs of governmental organizations and their accountability to Congress and constituents. Letters questioning the policies of agencies regarding consumer safety and well being, frequently accompanied by background material, were received, acknowledged and handled by O'Neill and his staff. These files are arranged alphabetically by department or agency name.

Subseries C. Early Legislative Files, 1953-1970

These early records contain correspondence on legislative issues of general concern to constituents from O'Neill's district. Beginning with the 83rd Congress (1953), O'Neill's first term as a congressman, the material traces critical issues of the time from atomic energy to water fluoridation. Included are acknowledgements and background material. Arranged alphabetically by subject within each congress, it is possible to trace an issue over several years.

Subseries D. Bill Files, 1953-1977

These are bills sponsored or co-sponsored by O'Neill. They date from his first term in the House (1953) to his first year as Speaker (1977). Occasionally background material and correspondence are included in the files but more often they contain only a copy of the bill. All material for a single bill has been filed together, thus one folder may cover more than one Congressional Session. The bills are arranged by number within each congress and session.

Subseries E. Bills-Not Sponsored, 1968-1985

These files represent bills in which O'Neill was interested but neither sponsored nor co-sponsored. The topics and issues covered range from the Budget, Social Security, and Taxes to special interests such as Immigration Reform, Energy Issues, and Health concerns. Information in the files is a mixture of correspondence, reports, news clippings, and copies of the bills themselves. Similar material may be located in the Legislative/Committee Files (Series III. Subseries A.). As with the Bill Files, these are organized by bill number within Congress.

Subseries F. Congressional Record Statements & Voting Records, 1953-1986

O'Neill's House floor statements, inserted comments, and extended remarks as they appeared in the Congressional Record are gathered here. Following these statements are his voting records for each session of congress, including those times he cast a vote as Speaker. The Speaker of the House, usually, votes only if his would be the deciding factor. This section also includes legislative ratings from various organizations, such as the National Federation of Independent Business. The organizations rate representatives based on a comparison of voting records to the groups' legislative interests.

Subseries G. Democratic Steering & Policy Committee, 1973-1987

The formation of the Democratic Steering & Policy Committee (DSPC) was one of several reforms suggested by the Hansen Committee in 1973 as a response to "perceived inefficiency in congressional performance." The committee was created within the Democratic Caucus to serve as a leadership forum for considering and promoting party policy, especially legislative priorities. It is commonly considered a "leadership dominated" committee whose membership includes the Speaker, Majority Leader, Majority Whip, Chairman of the National Democratic Campaign Committee and other top party and committee leaders.

The majority of the information in these files was generated by the DSPC staff. By far the largest amount of material in these holdings are in Sub-Subseries 1. Jack Lew's Files (1973-1987). Jack Lew served as a Legislative Analyst on the DSPC from 1980 to 1985. In 1986, he succeeded Ari Weiss as Executive Director. Sub-Subseries 2. Malcolm Russell's Files (1975-1980) contain background material that predates his tenure as a researcher with the DSPC in 1980. Sally Ericsson worked as a Legislative Analyst on the DSPC staff from 1983 to 1986, though her files span a greater time range (1975-1987); her files are found in Sub-Subseries 3. Ari Weiss served as Executive Director of the DSPC staff from 1979 to 1985. Prior to this position he had been a valued research assistant and House floor liaison on O'Neill's Majority Leadership and Speaker staffs. Again, Weiss's files (1975-1985), found in Sub-Subseries 4., reflect material gathered as background that predate his time at the DSPC.

Files from the above staff members, combinations of them (Sub-Subseries 5. and 6.) and general files (Sub-Subseries 7.) cover a wide array of topics similar to those found in other sections of the collection. Budget files deal with the Balanced Budget Amendment movement. Energy issues covered include the Synthetic Fuels Task Force and the National Energy Conservation Act of 1979. Health files provide information on National Health Insurance ideas. It is within the DSPC Files that material on the National Commission on Social Security Reform and other Social Security issues can be found. Other highlights include information on the Auto Industry and the Economy, especially the balance of trade problems between the United States and Japan during the 1980's. Democratic Party related documents contain Platform Committee files from the 1980 Convention. There is also information on State-of-the-Union Messages and Television Network Response Time for the Democratic Party.

Series IV. Grants/Projects/Subject Files

Subseries A. Subject Files, 1953-1984

Sub-Subseries 1. General A-Z

This material encompasses specific subject areas and issues of intense interest to O'Neill and his constituents. The files, which predominantly span the Vietnam and Watergate years (1965-1975), include constituent correspondence on such topical concerns as the budget, energy, health care, and international relations.

Sub-Subseries 2. Vietnam, 1965-1975

U.S. military involvement in Vietnam generated a great amount of constituent interest which is documented through correspondence, telegrams, surveys, background material, and bills. In his newsletter of September 1967, O'Neill stated that "As a citizen, Congressman, and father, I cannot help but wonder whether this [the Vietnam War] may not be too high a price to pay for an obscure and limited objective." The responses to this announcement, a reversal of his previous pro-war stance, provide an overview of the resulting dialog between O'Neill and his constituents.

Sub-Subseries 3. Watergate, 1972-1974

From May 1972 through August 1974, the Watergate Affair elicited considerable constituent correspondence, telegrams, mailgrams, and petitions. Citizen's opinions on the impeachment of President Richard Nixon were tallied and statistics gathered. Included here are O'Neill's acknowledgements and responses to this flood of mail.

Subseries B. Local/Project Files, 1953-1985

Gathered here are correspondence and related background material regarding legislation of vital interest to the citizens of Massachusetts. These records document O'Neill's early involvement (1953-1970) with issues directly impacting the area's economy. His commitment to such projects as the Boston Naval Shipyard, Massport, and urban renewal is evident. Correspondence demonstrating O'Neill's continued loyalty to Boston College is recorded here.

Subseries C. Grants, 1964-1986

Herein are collected notifications and summaries of grants awarded by the federal government to individuals, businesses, social and educational institutions. Especially prevalent are grants awarded for health and education projects in O'Neill's district. Included are copies of grant applications and reports sent to O'Neill for the purpose of soliciting his support.

Series V. Party Leadership/Administrative Files

Subseries A. Whip Office, 1961-1986

As Majority Whip (1971-1972) O'Neill was at the core of the Democratic Party in the House of Representatives. A strong party loyalist and a knowledgeable parliamentarian, he was well suited for the responsibilities of assisting Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Leader Hal Boggs. O'Neill's mission as Whip was to muster enough support among his Democratic colleagues to ensure victories for the Party's legislative programs and policies. These records document his backing of efforts to revise the Rules Committee's power, of which he was a member, in order to make it more responsive to the Party Leadership. In addition, background information on the office itself and Whip Notices provide a longer historical perspective than O'Neill's term as Whip.

Subseries B. Majority Leader, 1974-1976

O'Neill, as Majority Leader (1973-1976), was second in command to Speaker Carl Albert and chief spokesman for his party on the House floor. An accessible leader and skillful in the art of compromise, O'Neill took an active role in restoring public confidence in the legislative process during the post-Watergate period. He revitalized the Democratic Caucus to support the restructuring of the committee system. The significant portion of the records from O'Neill's Majority Leader years is found within the Congressional Organization files.

Subseries C. Speaker's Office, 1977-1986

By virtue of being elected Speaker of the House of Representatives O'Neill became the highest ranking officer of the Congress. He identified five roles of the Speaker: representative of his own congressional district; leader of the majority party; presiding officer of the House; chief administrator of the House side of the Capitol building and grounds; and Legislative Branch representative at ceremonial occasions. These duties translated into the power to control legislative scheduling, recognition on the Floor, appointments to committees, and signing legislation. O'Neill recognized the sometimes conflicting elements of the Speaker's job to be both partisan leader and impartial presiding officer. He realized the limits of authority that an independent minded House entailed and set as his goal "the task of reestablishing our rightful authority and trying to restore public confidence in the Congress..."

The papers in this section reflect the variety of duties O'Neill dealt with as Speaker. These include meeting with new members, tracking votes on major pieces of legislation, initiating leadership information packets, and opening the House to television coverage. In addition, they cover ceremonies honoring individuals, such as Anatoly Shcharansky, along with providing the State Department information on congressional delegations travelling overseas.

Subseries D. Speaker's Appointments, 1977-1986

O'Neill as Speaker had the prerogative of appointing House members to select special, ad hoc, and conference committees. His authority extended to the selection of private citizens to serve as trustees and advisory board members to such institutions as the military academies, Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Bicentennial Commission, and Regents of the Smithsonian. Recorded here are requests, recommendations, nominations, and official lists of nominees.

Subseries E. Congressional Organizations, 1968-1986

In order to reestablish Congressional authority Party Caucuses were revived. Members of each party organized to discuss legislative strategy and encourage party unity. Under O'Neill's leadership an effort was made to transform the House into a more open body. As a result of these reforms and due to the greater independence of younger members known as the "Watergate Babies," Congressional caucuses began to develop along lines other than that of Party. These files reflect O'Neill's relationship and involvement with the Democratic Caucus, Democratic Study Group, and Democratic Steering & Policy Committee (DSPC) as well as regional groups like the New England Congressional Caucus and Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition. It was in these and other groupings that a moderate to liberal atmosphere provided a forum for instituting change.

Subseries F. Democratic Party, 1960-1988

O'Neill, a strong partisan, encouraged party unity and urged reforms that would foster a stronger and more vital Democratic Party. Gathered here are Democratic organization records concerned with presidential and congressional elections and conventions. Correspondence in the files is supplemented by reports on election results, surveys, platform material and manuals. Especially interesting are the files on the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (DCCC), which raised money to assist candidates. As Speaker, O'Neill often supported the DCCC's efforts by speaking at fundraisers and receptions.

Subseries G. Executive/White House, 1971-1984

Upon becoming Majority Whip in 1971, O'Neill entered the leadership of the House. This carried with it a more active role in Congress' relationship with the President and the Executive branch. Later, as Speaker during the Reagan administration, O'Neill would come to be seen as spokesman for the Democratic Party. This documentation provides a limited perspective of O'Neill's White House activities. Correspondence from the presidents and their staffs during these years is combined with White House press releases. The latter cover various presidential policy and legislative proposals, speeches, fact sheets, and statements.

Series VI. Press Relations

Subseries A. Speeches, 1953-1986

These speeches cover the entire span of O'Neill's career as a congressman. Most of them were given at special events or before specific organizations. Occasionally, an interview or television show transcript, House floor speech or testimony can be found among the speeches.

Subseries B. Press Statements, 1966-1986

As Speaker, O'Neill opened daily press conferences by reading a prepared statement to the press. This was in keeping with his long established policy of informing the press and constituents about Democratic objectives and his own work in Washington.

Subseries C. Press Conference Transcripts & Briefings, 1977-1986

Transcripts of the Speaker's daily press conferences were compiled by his staff beginning in 1980. These provide verbatim accounts of reporters' questions and O'Neill's answers. The transcripts give evidence of his cordial, sometimes jocular, relationship with the press corps. In addition to the transcripts, a memo summarizing the details of the press conference was prepared each day for the Press Assistant.

Subseries D. Press Assistant Files, 1963-1986

The Press Assistant also acted as an administrative assistant by doing research for speeches, news releases, press briefings, and investigating current topics of interest. Gary Hymel held this position (1978-1981), followed by Christopher Matthews (1982-1986). The bulk of the material dates from Matthews' tenure as Press Assistant. The files cover a broad spectrum of issues from the budget and tax plans to Central America and the MX Missile. Included here are Democratic Party responses to President Reagan's radio speeches and State of the Union addresses. Newsletters and interviews, including oral history transcripts done for the Kennedy and Johnson Presidential Libraries, conclude the Press Assistant Files subseries.

Subseries E. Clippings, 1935-1994

Newspaper and magazine articles collected here document O'Neill's public image as recorded by the press. Personal stories, such as his marriage to Mildred Anne Miller (1941), are mixed with political issues like Impeachment (1974-1975), Busing (1975), and Beirut (1983). O'Neill's articles in support of President Kennedy's legislative proposals (1961-1962) serve as an interesting insight to their political relationship. Numerous tributes and profiles, written during O'Neill's last year as Speaker (1986), provide some overview and analysis of his career. An extensive set of Boston Globe articles (1935-1994) regarding O'Neill complete this section.

Subseries F. Guest Books & Scrapbooks, 1947-1995

Guest books (1964-1995) recorded visitors received by O'Neill and his staff in the House Office Building and the Speaker's Office in the Capitol. Guest Books from the Speaker's recreated office at Boston College are also included in this subseries. The Scrapbooks (1947-1986) contain additional newspaper and magazine clippings. Despite some missing volumes, they provide valuable information on O'Neill's years in the Massachusetts State Legislature. Fragile originals have been microfilmed for easier access and preservation; the microfilm is the use copy.

Series VII. Audiovisual Materials

Subseries A. Photographs, 1936-1992

Over 7,500 photographs document O'Neill's life and career, from his days at Boston College and in the Massachusetts State Legislature through his terms in Congress, as a member of the Democratic leadership, to the final tribute he received upon his retirement in 1986. The largest segment records O'Neill's tenure as Speaker of the House of Representatives (1977-1986). As Speaker, O'Neill received numerous visitors to his Capitol office. His door seemed always open to presidents and colleagues, visiting dignitaries and constituents. There are images of O'Neill with Presidents Ford, Carter, and Reagan. Visiting heads of state include Margaret Thatcher, Anwar Sadat, Menachem Begin, and several Prime Ministers of Ireland. Luncheons in the Speaker's dining room featured guests such as Bob Hope, Sophia Loren, and Carl Yastrzemski. Constituents from business executives to school children visited O'Neill and posed for photographs with him, either in the Speaker's office or on the Capitol steps. Events covered in the photographs highlight the Speaker's travels abroad, charity golf tournaments, and occasions spent with his family; these present a more candid view of O'Neill to balance the posed photographs taken at formal receptions, dinners, and meetings. This subseries also contains several photo albums highlighting various trips both abroad and domestic which the Speaker took as well as events he participated in, including two Presidential inaugurations.

Subseries B. Videocassettes, 1977-1995

Videocassettes date, primarily, from O'Neill's years as Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives. O'Neill's staff frequently taped newscasts and other shows that contained interviews, profiles, and major events in which the Speaker was involved. Of special interest are those tapes that show O'Neill speaking on the Floor of the House and those that record his political reminiscences.

Subseries C. Audiocassettes & Tapes, 1963-1993

This is a collection of audiocassettes and reel-to-reel recordings of informal press conferences, radio addresses, interviews, and commercial recordings. Topics include: Lebanon, Nicaragua,

President Reagan, the MX Missile and reminiscences of O'Neill's career. These tapes also include O'Neill's narration of "Twas the Night Before Christmas" with the Boston Pops and his farewell messages to the President and Congress.

Subseries D. Other, 1964-1985

This subseries contains items in audiovisual formats not covered by the other subseries in the audiovisual series. The subseries contains one box of musical records (7, 10, and 12-inch) and one film reel.

Series VIII. Artifacts, 1942-1991

Artifacts are defined as three dimensional objects such as awards, framed photographs, trophies, plaques, gavels, medallions, etc.; however, in certain instances, paper items were included. These include oversized prints, political cartoons, and letters. There are over 670 items defined as artifacts in the collection. NOTE: many artifacts are in the Library's off-site facility and require significant additional retrieval time.
