Biographical note

Jane Jacobs (née Butzner) was born on May 4, 1916, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, the daughter of John Butzner, a physician, and Bess Robison Butzner. After graduating from Scranton's Central High School, Jacobs briefly trained to become a stenographer before taking a position as a reporter with the Scranton Tribune. In 1938, she moved to New York City and attended Columbia University's School of General Studies for two years. In the years that followed, she held a number of writing and editing jobs. In 1944, she married Robert Hyde Jacobs, Jr., an architect, with whom she had three children: James Kedzie (1948), Edward Decker (1950), and Mary Hyde (1955).

In 1952, Jacobs became an associate editor at Architectural Forum magazine, where she was introduced to the topics of city planning and rebuilding. She wrote a book sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation that focused on American cities: The Death and Life of Great American Cities was published in 1961 and went on to become Jacobs's most well-known book. In addition to her writing, Jacobs was also an activist. She was arrested in 1968 after she disrupted a public meeting about the Lower Manhattan Expressway, a project she opposed.

Jacobs moved to Toronto with her family in 1969 in part due to her objection to the Vietnam War. She quickly became an influential figure in Toronto and soon after her arrival helped to stop plans for the construction of the Spadina Expressway. Jacobs became a Canadian citizen in 1974. She continued to write on topics including urban issues, Canadian cities and sovereignty, and economics. Jacobs was nominated to the Order of Canada in 1996 for her work on urban development. Her last book, Dark Age Ahead, was published in 2004. Jane Jacobs died on April 25, 2006, in Toronto.

Collection Inventory

Series I: Correspondence, 1927-2005, undated

Scope and Contents note

This series consists of Jane Jacobs's correspondence and is divided into four subseries. Items of interest include a letter from President Lyndon Johnson, a note regarding Jacobs's work from former first lady Eleanor Roosevelt, and a robust collection of family correspondence. Each subseries is arranged chronologically with undated items at the beginning.

Subseries A: Publishing correspondence, 1961-2005, undated

Scope and Contents note

This subseries consists of publishing correspondence, reviews, and reader reactions organized by book (based on chronological order of first published date with undated material appearing first). In some cases, correspondence includes Jacobs's reply. Additionally, the series includes materials included with correspondence such as news clippings, reviews, and book production proofs. Of interest are the English version of a foreword for a Japanese translation of Cities and the Wealth of Nations and typescripts of Jacobs's contributions to At Grandmother's Table.
