As a result of a Library systems change in 2017, the identification number of this collection was modified from IMC.M035 to IM.M035.1998.

The pin from box 9, folder 53 was rehoused in box 43. The box 9, folder 53 designation has not been reused.

Biographical Note: John McCormack

Renowned tenor John McCormack performed around the world during the first few decades of the twentieth century. He was born in 1884 in Athlone, Ireland, son of a foreman at the Athlone Woollen Mills. He began his formal training with Dr. Vincent O'Brien in Dublin and, in 1903, had his first big musical success as winner of the Dublin Feis Ceoil competition. After receiving operatic training from Maestro Vincenzo Sabatini in Milan, McCormack debuted at London's Covent Garden in 1907. He went on to perform in such operas as Don Giovanni, La Bohème, and Romeo and Juliet. McCormack debuted at the Manhattan Opera House in 1909, and toured Australia with soprano Nellie Melba in 1911. McCormack rose to prominence in the United States as an operatic performer, recitalist and recording artist. He became an American citizen in 1917. In the 1920s and 1930s, McCormack toured the world performing a unique repertoire combining classical music, ballads, sacred music and sentimental popular songs. McCormack was also a pioneering radio performer as a frequent guest and host of his own program, and his commercial recordings sold in the millions.

McCormack was a devoted Catholic, and in 1928 he was made a papal count by Pope Pius XI. He was known for his charitable efforts, performing for the war efforts in both world wars. In 1930, he starred in the film, Song o' My Heart, and he also appeared in the 1937 film Wings of the Morning. McCormack retired from performing in 1938 and stopped singing altogether after 1942, when he developed emphysema.

McCormack married Lily Foley in 1906, and they had two children, Cyril and Gwen. He died on September 16, 1945, and is buried in Deansgrange Cemetery on the outskirts of Dublin.

Biographical Note: Frederick M. Manning

Frederick M. Manning (1938-1999) was the son of Frank Manning, who knew John McCormack as a young singer in Athlone and became a friend and early supporter of McCormack's musical career. Frederick Manning, in turn, became a friend to the McCormack family and a supporter of John McCormack's musical legacy. Manning was an expert collector and lecturer on the life and work of John McCormack. He was a founding member of the John McCormack Society of America (founded in 1950), the society's first secretary and an honorary life-long vice-president.

Scope and Contents

These materials pertaining to John McCormack's life and career were compiled by Frederick M. Manning. Notable manuscripts in the collection include McCormack's memoirs, a book of song lyrics used as a prompt and prop by McCormack in performance, a handwritten index of McCormack's sheet music, and annotated typescripts of McCormack's introductory remarks to radio performances. Other notable items include correspondence to and from McCormack with original letters from Edward Elgar, Sergei Rachmaninoff, and Lilli Lehmann. The collection also contains many photographs of McCormack, original programs from McCormack's concert performances, sheet music, and analog sound discs of McCormack's song recordings.

This collection also documents commemorations of McCormack after his death, including those in 1984, the centenary of McCormack's birth. In addition, it contains research in the form of lists, notes, and transcriptions compiled by Manning and/or his colleagues.

Series II: Manuscripts and Typescripts by John McCormack, circa 1900-1941

Processing Information

The materials in Box 5 are the originals. Preservation photocopies with added page numbers were created for most of the manuscripts and typescripts in order to document original page order; these copies are available in Box 4.

Subseries A: Lyric Book, circa 1900-1938

Scope and Contents

The lyric book is a small black notebook containing lyrics for songs performed by McCormack in concert. McCormack used the book as a prop while performing and to help him remember the lyrics of the songs. There are a total of 72 leaves, including one that is loosely placed in between two bound-in leaves. Some lyrics are typescript, some have handwritten annotations (likely McCormack's), and some are exclusively handwritten.

Subseries B: Memoirs, circa 1936-1941

Scope and Contents

This subseries includes the draft of McCormack's memoirs entitled "Them Was the Days": The Story of a Singer. Portions of the memoirs are handwritten and portions are typescript. McCormack did not publish his memoirs, but portions were used by McCormack biographer L.A.G. Strong and by Lily McCormack for her own memoir, I Hear You Calling Me.

There are no corresponding handwritten pages for pages 1-17 (typescript). Pages 21-45 (manuscript) include McCormack's insertions and emendations, possibly written for L.A.G. Strong. Pages 46-238 include McCormack's manuscript memoirs and some typescript pages. Page 46 (manuscript) corresponds with page 18 of the typescript.

Page 239 is a chronology of McCormack's life in the artist's handwriting followed by 14 pages (manuscript) of quotations.

Processing Information

For reference purposes, research copies of McCormack's memoirs have been assigned page numbers to indicate the arrangement in which they were received at the Burns Library. Box and folder order reflects this arrangement. In cases where leaves had smaller sheets attached and/or writing on the back, the pages have been assigned numbers in the following order: (1) the front side of the smaller taped sheet, (2) the back side of the smaller taped sheet, (3) the front side of the larger sheet, and (4) the back side of the larger sheet. This order may or may not reflect McCormack's narrative order. Also found in the memoirs is a small yellow slip of paper that reads "Records highest year." The processor cannot determine who wrote this slip or where it was originally placed. Therefore, it has been placed at the end of the 253 pages.

Series XII: Recordings

Scope and Contents

This series contains ten- and twelve-inch analog sound discs of recordings featuring John McCormack. It includes musical collaborations with Lucrezia Bori, Fritz Kreisler, Dame Nellie Melba, Gerald Moore, Vincent O'Brien, Mario Samarco, Edwin Schneider, and others. Most of the sound discs are marked 78 rpm.

Titles are taken from recordings and are formatted: title of work / composer (matrix number) (publisher number). Entries represent a single side of a phonograph record, as each side is often an independent recording.

Arrangement

Alphabetical.

Processing Information

Recordings were numbered in the order in which they were received. The series list has been re-arranged alphabetically for improved intelligibility, but a container list by box is available from the reading room upon request.
