Custodial History

Rob Loud, St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing (SON) librarian from 1980-2000, began an archival collection for St. Elizabeth's Hospital in 1982 based on a suggestion from hospital director William Skerry. In addition to keeping the SON records, Loud created comprehensive chronological photographic files documenting student life and school events during his tenure. The SON portion of the St. Elizabeth's Hospital archives and Loud's photographic files were donated to Boston College at the time of the school's closing. (These materials are series III, IV, and V.)

After the closure of the school, the Alumni Association solicited donations of personal ephemera and photographs from its membership (series II) and contributed some of its own records as well (series I, plus contributions to series IV).

Historical note

St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing was established in 1895, at the request of the hospital physicians for an onsite training school. The hospital and school were originally located in Blackstone Square in Boston's South End neighborhood. In 1912 St. Elizabeth's outgrew its space and moved to Brighton, where it continued to expand with several substantial new additions to the campus between 1925 and 1986. The School of Nursing was accredited by the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Nursing in 1910. The school offered a three-year diploma program that focused on home, hospital, and community health options to provide complete care "physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually." It also created relationships with local educational and health institutions. Clinical residency was offered in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, but by 1985 also at Bournewood Hospital, Franciscan Children's Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, St. John of God Hospital, and through collaboration with Boston-area community healthcare providers. St. Elizabeth's began to host Boston College graduate nursing students completing their clinical practice in 1960. In 1977 the School of Nursing established a partnership with Regis College that allowed St. Elizabeth's nursing students to simultaneously earn credits towards a bachelor's degree. The School of Nursing curriculum shifted in 1994 from its original three-year model to a two-year program. The school graduated its last class in May of 2000.

Biographical note

Elizabeth Cecilia Fagan, commonly known as Helen, was born on Christmas Day in 1929. After growing up in Newton, Massachusetts, she attended St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing, where she received her RN in 1950. She later attended Boston College's School of Nursing, where she received her BS in Nursing as a part of the class of 1958. She was director of the St. Elizabeth's Hospital School of Nursing from 1977 until 2000. When the school closed she served as president of the school's alumni association. She died on August 30, 2011, at 81 years of age.

Scope and Contents

The collection has been arranged into eight series: I. Alumni Association records; II. Ephemera and memorabilia; III. Photographs and videos; IV. Printed materials; V. Records; VI. Scrapbooks; VII. Student ledgers; and VIII. Uniforms.

Note that Series III includes organizational photographs (items collected and created by SON librarian Rob Loud, albums created by SON administration and the Alumni Association, and photographs from the Hospital public relations department), while personal snapshots from alumni are included in Series II.

Series VIII: Uniforms, 1900s

Scope and Contents

Includes examples of uniforms across the history of the school. The wool cape was worn by students for district nursing rounds in cold weather. The folded student caps demonstrate St. Elizabeth's signature fold, which forms an "M", symbolizing the Virgin Mary, on the top of the cap. The three points represent the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. The cupcake style caps used in the early years of the school were adopted again beginning with the class of 1969, because they were more uniform than the folded caps, which were assembled by each student and varied greatly in appearance. Ribbon color on the cupcake caps indicated junior, senior, or graduate status. Although color systems varied over the years, black was consistently used for graduates.
