BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES:

Kathleen Daly Clarke (1878-1972)

Kathleen Daly was born in Limerick into a republican family. Her father had been arrested for Fenian activities and her uncle, John Daly, sentenced to life imprisonment. In 1901, she moved to New York to marry Thomas Clarke, a jail acquaintance of her uncle. Together they ran a small farm and market before returning to Ireland in 1907.

Kathleen Clarke played a role in Cumman na mBan from its 1914 inception, organizing the central office, lecturing, and pamphleteering. During the Easter Rising, she was arrested. Afterwards, her husband and brother were court-martialed and executed. She formed the Committee of the Irish Volunteer Dependents Fund to aid dependents of imprisoned and executed volunteers.

In 1918, she was elected vice-president of Cumman na mBan and to the executive of Sinn Fein. She campaigned against conscription and was arrested for treasonable conspiracy. Along with Constance de Markievicz, Hanna Sheehy-Skeffington, and Maud Gonne, Clarke spent nine months in Holloway Prison in England.

In 1919, Clarke was elected alderman of Wood Quay and Mountjoy wards. She was also a judge, chaired the north city republican courts, and was active in the Irish White Cross. She was elected to the second Dail in 1920 and opposed the treaty with the United Kingdom. Clarke lost her seat in 1922, regained and lost it again in 1927. She left Sinn Fein and joined Fianna Fail.

From 1927 to 1936, Clarke served as a Fianna Fail Senator; however, she disagreed with Fianna Fail policies that she thought contradicted provisions concerning women in the 1916 proclamation. Clarke was elected the first female Lord Mayor of Dublin in 1939. She disagreed with de Valera and Fianna Fail over treatment of republican prisoners during the 1940s. At the end of her mayoral term in 1944, Clarke retired from Fianna Fail. Later, she ran unsuccessfully on the Clann na Poblachta ticket. On the 50th Anniversary of the Rising, Clarke received an honorary degree from the National University of Ireland. In 1967, she opened a Fenian Exhibition in Kilmainham Jail in Dublin.

She died in Liverpool in 1972 and was given a state funeral in the Pro Cathedral, Dublin. Two of her three sons, Thomas, Jr. and Emmet, survived her. Her first son, John Daly Clarke (known as "Daly"), died in 1971.

Thomas Clarke (1857-1916)

Thomas Clarke was born on the Isle of Wight. His father was in the British Army. The Clarkes emigrated to South Africa and stayed there for about 10 years before moving to Dungannon, Co. Tyrone, Ireland. Clarke stayed in Dungannon until moving to the United States in 1878.

In the US, Clarke joined Clan na Gael, the American wing of the Irish Republican Brotherhood (IRB). In 1883, Clarke and Thomas Gallagher were sent to England on a dynamiting mission. Both were arrested and sentenced to life imprisonment for treason. Clarke served fifteen years in English prisons and was released in 1898. Clarke returned to Ireland, was made a freeman of the city of Limerick, but was unable to find work and returned to the US in 1900. He resumed his activities with Clan na Gael, working on the Gaelic American. In 1901, he married Kathleen Daly. They returned to Ireland in 1907 and established a newspaper and tobacconist shop in Dublin.

In Dublin, Clarke worked to reorganize the IRB, which had become ineffective. He was elected to the Supreme Council of the IRB and argued for a Military Council to plan an armed insurrection. In 1911, Clarke organized the first national pilgrimage to Wolfe Tone's grave in Bodestowne, Co. Kildare. In September 1915, Clarke and Sean MacDiarmada were admitted into the IRB's secret Military Council, joining Patrick Pearse, Joseph Mary Plunkett, Eamonn Ceannt, and later, James Connolly. Clarke presided over the meeting that decided to proceed with the Easter Rising.

As the oldest member of the Provisional Government and a Fenian, Clarke was the first signatory of the 1916 Proclamation of the Irish Republic. He fought in the General Post Office (GPO) during Easter week and was court-martialed on May 1, 1916. He was executed by firing squad on May 3. His wife, Kathleen Daly Clarke, and his sons, John Daly (known as "Daly"), Thomas, Jr., and Emmet, survived him.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE:

The papers contain correspondence, photographs, artwork, ephemera, and clippings documenting the life and career of Kathleen Daly Clarke, while Clarke's collection includes materials about her husband Thomas Clarke and Irish politics during the early- to mid-1900s. Of note are cards she received from political figures, including Eamon de Valera, Douglas Hyde, and Sean Ó Ceallaigh, some of which were printed by Cuala Press and Three Candles Press. A significant portion of the materials are publications and ephemera circulated by Irish political groups, including Sinn Fein and Fianna Fail.

The collection is arranged into four series.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS:

SERIES I: Professional Materials, 1897-1960, undated

This series contains correspondence, photographs, clippings, receipts, programs, and other materials related to Clarke's political activities and career. The series is arranged into three subseries.

SUBSERIES A: Correspondence, 1897-1949, undated

This subseries contains incoming letters and invitations to events. The materials have been arranged chronologically by type.

SUBSERIES B: Photographs, 1917-1941, undated

This subseries contains primarily photographs of Clarke attending functions.

SUBSERIES C: Clippings, Programs, and Other Papers, 1897-1960, undated

This subseries contains clippings, programs, financial records, travel permits, reports, membership cards, and a scrapbook of clippings from Clarke's terms as the mayor of Dublin (1939-1941). The materials are arranged by type with clippings listed first, followed by programs and other papers.

SERIES II: Personal Materials, 1900-1972, undated

This series contains Christmas cards received by Clarke, photographs of the Daly and Clarke families, and a card from her funeral. The cards include those received from Eamon de Valera, Douglas Hyde, and Sean Ó Ceallaigh, as well as one Clarke sent to her son Daly from Halloway Jail (1918). Some of the Christmas cards were produced by well-known Irish printers, Cuala Press and Three Candles Press. Cards are listed first and arranged chronologically; photographs follow, also arranged chronologically; the final item in the series is the funeral card.

SERIES III: Irish Political Materials, 1907-1972, undated

This series contains pamphlets, clippings, photographs, and artwork reflecting Irish politics and history during the early to mid-1900s. It is arranged into two subseries.

SUBSERIES A: Pamphlets, Clippings, and Ephemera, 1907-1972, undated

This subseries contains Irish political pamphlets from the early to mid-1900s, including those produced by Fianna Fail and Sinn Fein. There are also clippings and ephemera, including membership, business, and funeral cards, as well as unused IRA stationery. The subseries is arranged alphabetically within type (with pamphlets and ephemera grouped together and listed first). Much of the published material has been individually catalogued; in those cases, call number slips are included in the folder. Boxes 10-14 contain exclusively published material and are not listed in this finding aid; consult the library catalog.

SUBSERIES B: Visual Materials, undated

This subseries contains photographs of people and places in Ireland, including photos of Countess Constance de Markievicz acting in a play, and artwork, including two hand-painted crests and one pencil drawing (which is attributed to Count Markievicz). Most of this material is undated. Photographs are listed first.

SERIES IV: Thomas J. Clarke Materials, 1906-1916, undated

This series contains programs, souvenirs, publications, photographs, postcards, and ephemera documenting the life and work of Thomas J. Clarke. It is arranged into two subseries.

SUBSERIES A: Printed Materials, 1906-1913, undated

This subseries contains programs, souvenirs, newspapers (including two issues of Irish Freedom, edited by Thomas Clarke), and other printed materials related to the cause for Irish independence. Most of the items were written, published, or edited by Clarke.

SUBSERIES B: Photographs, Postcards, and Ephemera, 1911-1916, undated

This subseries contains photographs of Thomas Clarke and his family, the 1916 Sinn Fein Rebellion, and the National Convention Friends of Irish Freedom. One of the family photos is a collage designed by Countess Markievicz. There are also several family postcards, a postcard album, and other materials including Clarke's scarf and business card.
