Administrative Information

Publication Information

Processed by Annalisa Moretti in 2017. This finding aid was produced using ArchivesSpace.

Conditions Governing Access

These materials are made available for use in research, teaching and private study, pursuant to U.S. Copyright Law. The user must assume full responsibility for any use of the materials, including but not limited to, infringement of copyright and publication rights of reproduced materials. Any materials used for academic research or otherwise should be fully credited with the source. The original authors may retain copyright to the materials.

Conditions Governing Use

Series I is closed for research due to fragility of materials and digital copies are forthcoming. The rest of the collection is open for research.

Provenance

Because the current accessioning system was not used until January 1986, it is not possible to know exactly the dates of acquisition of materials received before that time.

Processing Information

The name of the folk character Anansi has multiple spellings. We have used the spelling "Anansi" in our description because it is the Library of Congress authorized form. The spelling "Anancy" is also common in the Caribbean, and that spelling is frequently found on the materials in this collection.

Many materials in this collection have manuscript numbers believed to have been assigned by Williams. They are noted in parenthesis after the titles of the materials where known.

Biographical note

Joseph J. Williams, SJ was born on December 1, 1875, in Boston, Massachusetts, to Nicholas and Mary Jane Williams. Williams attended Boston College High School, the College of St. Francis Xavier, Woodstock College, and Loyola School, New York and became a member of the Society of Jesus in 1895. In 1907 he was ordained.

In 1912 Williams traveled to Jamaica as a missionary. This appointment proved influential to him, as he became fascinated by anthropology and Jamaican and African folklore and cultural beliefs. He spent five years in the country, years which laid the groundwork for his future studies.

Williams returned to the United States in 1918, working at Woodstock College and College of the Holy Cross. In the 1920s and 1930s, he published a number of scholarly works concerning African and Caribbean history and belief systems, including Whisperings of the Caribbean (1925), Whence the Black Irish of Jamaica (1930), Hebrewisms of West Africa (1930), and Voodoo and Obeah in Jamaica (1932). In 1930, he launched a contest encouraging Jamaican school children to submit stories about the trickster character Anansi. In the early 1930s he became a lecturer in anthropology at Boston College.

Williams intended to travel to Africa to research his next project in the mid-1930s, but he became ill and spent the next few years bedridden, before dying on October 28, 1940 from a heart attack.

Scope and Contents

This collection contains materials created and compiled by Joseph J. Williams, SJ and reflects his academic interests in the Caribbean and Africa.

The bulk of the collection consists of the Anansi stories, approximately four thousand handwritten tales about a folk character which originated in Africa and became part of Jamaican traditions. The stories were written by Jamaican school children in 1930 in response to a contest Williams ran, and are accompanied by transcriptions.

The collection also contains manuscripts of anthropological works by Williams and others working in Africa and the Caribbean. Williams collected additional materials documenting these regions which span the sixteenth to the early twentieth centuries. They include: broadsides; correspondence; engravings; financial, legal, and shipping documents; maps; newspapers; and reports. Their topics comprise the history, culture, and religious practices of the Caribbean (particularly Jamaica) and Africa; abolition and the slave trade; piracy; colonialism; and the Jesuit order. Some highlights of the collection are an eighteenth-century indenture (a legal contract, in this case for the lease of an estate); a number of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century wills; a letter written by Sir William Penn (an English navy admiral and the father of William Penn, the founder of the state of Pennsylvania); and a unique handmade scrapbook entitled "Souvenir of the Isle of Springs."

Arrangement

The Joseph J. Williams, SJ ethnological collection is arranged into five series: I. Anansi stories, II. Anthropology manuscripts, III. Collected Caribbeana, IV. Collected Africana, and V. Other maps.

Series II is further arranged into two subseries: A. By Williams and B. By others.

Series III. is arranged into ten subseries: A. Broadsides, B. Correspondence, C. Finance, D. Illustrations, E. Maps, F. Newspapers, G. Religious, H. Reports, I. Shipping, and J. Wills and estates.

Series IV is arranged into three subseries: A. Illustrations, B. Manuscripts, and C. Maps.

All materials are arranged alphabetically withing series/subseries.

Collection Inventory

Arrangement

Alphabetical by parish and by school name thereunder.

Historical note

Jamaica's administrative divisions include three counties, which are further subdivided into fourteen parishes.

Scope and Contents

Titles include school name, religious affiliation, and the range of manuscript numbers included. All of this information was taken from the index created by Williams (included in Subseries A: Project Planning). His manuscript numbers are not strictly by school and may have been assigned to the stories in the order he received them.
